MLLE LILLIAN GREUZE.

SELLS KISS FOR $200 TO AID FRENCH SOLDIERS.

New York, Nov. 5.—Two hundred dollars was paid for a kiss from the lips of pretty Mlle. Lillian Greuze, the most beautiful nurse in France, by a fellow countryman on the French liner Rochambeau, which has just arrived in port. The money has been turned over for the benefit of the orphans of French dressmakers who were killed at the front.

She was passing one of the collection bags at a ship concert on board and overheard a man remark that he would gladly contribute $200 to the benefit if Mlle. Greuze would bestow a kiss on him.

"Done," she exclaimed as she heard the remark. "I am a patriot; I kiss—for France."

Thereupon she delicately puckered her lips for the $200 kiss. It was gallantly bestowed and the money was paid in the presence of many applauding witnesses. The recipient of the kiss said that it was worth all he paid for it and more too.

BALKAN SITUATION IS VERY SERIOUS

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

London, Nov. 5.—King Ferdinand is pouring reinforcements of Bulgarian troops into Servia north of Uskub to build a wall of steel between the Servian army in the north and the Anglo-French forces in the south.

Complete annihilation of the Servian army of the north is possible unless the Anglo-French troops are able to cut their way through.

Nish is reported to have been captured by the first Bulgarian army under General Boyadjieff.

The seriousness of the Balkan situation for the allies has not been abated in any way. Practically all advices arriving here within the past twenty-four hours were of the most pessimistic kind, most of them pertaining to fresh successes of the German, Austro-Hungarian and Bulgarian armies.

Of the 500 miles of railway in Servia, more than 600 miles are now held by the Teutonic allies or else are dominated by the guns of their artillery.

Bulgaria has put every ounce of her war strength at the command of Germany. There are 350,000 Bulgarian troops under arms.

So terrible have been the Servian losses from bullets and disease since the war began that the Sero army now has less than 55,000 men.

Occupation of the important Servian railway town of Paraehin, 43 miles north of Nish is reported from Vienna. It lies at the junction of the Belgrade Sofia Railway and railway running through northeastern Servia to the Rumanian frontier.

If the report of the capture of Nish is true troop and supply trains will be rolling from Berlin through to Constantinople within forty eight hours.

A dispatch to the Times from Athens says that the allied fleet is still bombarding the Bulgarian port of Dedeagatch on the Aegean Sea at intervals.

The political situation in the Balkans has become more complicated as a result of the overthrow of the Zaimis "neutrality" cabinet in Greece.

Ex-Premier Venizelos announced in the Greek chamber of deputies that England's offer of Cyprus of Greece was independent of the result of the war. England has also promised Greece part of the Brusa and a slice of Bulgarian Thrace on certain conditions.

A slight ray of optimism was contained in a Bucharest dispatch to the Daily News, stating that Rumania had refused to accede to Germany's request that two Russian torpedo boats, moored in the Danubian port of Turnu, be interned.

BUTTERFLY BALL FOR CITY HOSPITAL

Date of Big Charity Ball in the Armory Set for December 9—Novel Social Event Planned.

The date for the big charity ball to be given by the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Kingston City Hospital has been set at last and plans for the decorations and entertainment are now made public for the first time.

The "Butterfly Ball," as it will be called, is booked at the armory for December 9, and the name given to it is in itself suggestive of possibilities in decoration both novel and beautiful.

The whole scheme of the ball, both in the decoration of the ball room and the pageant which precedes the general dancing, will be representative of summer, of flowers, and the life of the butterfly. Hundreds of butterflies will decorate the walls, swing from the girders and flutter over the dancers. Flowers will ornament the edges of the boxes, and garlands of them will drape the railings. The grim old drill hall of the state armory will blossom like a garden, and December will be transformed into June.

Although the Butterfly Ball is to be under the auspices of the Ladies' Auxiliary, its success should be of great interest to every organization and every individual in Ulster county. Its object is to add a substantial sum to the building fund of the city hospital, a fund which is to construct a modern, commodious, fire proof addition to the present building, the whole when completed making the institution adequate to the demands of the community.

The auxiliary will ask the co-operation of other organizations of the city in making this ball an artistic success. The Ulster County Garden Club has already consented to take charge of the arrangement of the decorations, and the general scheme of the ballroom. Under the efficient direction of these women who have made floral effects a study, the setting of the Butterfly Ball promises to exceed in brilliance anything before attempted in the city.

The entertainment preceding the general dancing will differ greatly from previous affairs in that it will be largely professiona talent. The solo dancers, whose names will be announced later, are people with New York reputations whose art will be a revelation to a Kingston audience.

In addition there will be a group of sixteen girls chosen from among the best dancers in Kingston. These in artistic poses and graceful evolutions will form a background for the solo dancers. Madam Inkrect, former ballet mistress of the Metropolitan opera house, has been engaged to train these young ladies. She will be in Kingston two weeks before the ball teaching the movements and rehearsing the dancers. Madam Inkrect is now on the staff of the New York Hippodrome and it is by special permission of the management that she has been secured for this work. To study under this wonderful teacher for two weeks will be a privilege coveted by all, and there should be no difficulty in securing the best dancers in Kingston to join this class.

All in all the Butterfly Ball will be an event beautiful, inspiring and spectacular in the highest degree.

William V. Cleary, one time town clerk of Haverstraw, was caught Thursday in Washington, D. C., after a six months' chase, and was taken by Under Sheriff Theodore De Noyelles of Rockland county to the jail in New City. Grand larceny in the sum of $100 is the charge made in the warrant against Cleary, who was indicted last march with Warren Beasley, overseer of the poor, and Josiah Felter, supervisor of the town of Haverstraw, on charges of misappropriating town funds. A few weeks previously Cleary had been acquitted of murder after killing Eugene Newman, his nineteen-year-old son-in-law.

ARRESTS EXPECTED IN BOMB PLOT

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Nov. 5.—That the alleged conspiracy to destroy ships carrying ammunition to the allies included German agents in every seaport of importance in the eastern section of the United States was the unqualified accusation made today by William Flynn, chief of the United States secret service.

Chief Flynn declared that Baltimore, where tons of canned goods are shipped weekly to the allies, had been chosen as the scene of staggering dynamite operations on the ships plying between this country and Europe.

It is expected that forty more arrests in the German bomb plot will be made in the immediate future.

So big have the ramifications of the plot shown themselves to be that the authorities are now confident that Robert Fay and Walter Scholz, two of the alleged conspirators under arrest here have not told nearly as much as they know.

No Cause of Action.

A verdict of no cause of action was brought in by the jury late Thursday afternoon before whom the suit brought by Mrs. Martha Hyatte of Milton against Jesse Birch of the town of Newburgh, to recover $10,000 for personal injuries received when two automobiles collided on the state road at Plattekill near the county line in southern Ulster on Decoration Day of this year. The trial of the suit was taken up before Judge Hasbrouck and a jury in supreme court on Thursday morning and sent to the jury that afternoon. Frank W. Brooks tried the case for Mrs. Hyatte while Cunningham & Traver represented Mr. Birch. At the time of the collision Mr. Birch was out driving with his son and two friends while Mrs. Hyatte was out riding in the machine owned and driven by William L. DeWitt, which she had engaged for the occasion. Both drivers blamed the other for the collision and after hearing the evidence the jury decided that the accident was due to the driving of Mr. DeWitt. It was brought out during the trial that Mr. DeWitt had also brought an action against Mr. Birch to recover for damages to his machine in the collision.

For Young Folks

Girls Masquerade as Cowboys For Charity.

New York society folks recently held a circus on Long Island, New York, to raise funds for charity. Piping Rock, where the entertainment was held, is a most exclusive place, and only the most select are welcome. The circus was a pronounced success, and a large sum of money was raised. Among the many interesting exhibits was a group of young girls who posed as cowboys and performed in a most daring and skillful manner the feats of horsemanship commonly attributed to the cowpunchers of the plains. They rode their ponies in races, jumped hurdles and threw the lasso in real cowboy fashion. The young girl here pictured is Miss Helen Leeming, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Woodruff Leeming of New York city. She is standing on the back of her pony, the stirrup straps crossed over the back of her horse. She was saluting the grand stand occupants when the camera man snapped her.

Weatherwise Birds.

The seagull makes a splendid living barometer. If a covey of seagulls fly seaward early in the morning sailors and fishermen know that the day will be fine and the wind fair, but if the birds keep inland, though there be no haze hanging out toward the sea to denote unpleasant weather, interested folk know that the elements will be unfavorable.

FALL PLANTING FOR BULBS.

Autumn Is the Time to Plant the Spring Flowering Ones.

[Prepared by United States department of agriculture.]

Garden lovers who wish their gardens or the grounds around their houses to be rich in spring with crocus, narcissus, tulips and Spanish iris should begin their work without delay, for fall is the time to plant the bulbs of these flowers. The work should be undertaken as soon as an early frost has injured the foliage in the beds of annual flowers.

In case of crocuses many will find it desirable to establish the plants so that they grow and blossom on the lawn much as the wild flowers do, or they may be mixed with other bulbs in the border, where they will be one of the earliest flowers to appear in the spring and will have disappeared before the narcissuses begin to bloom. The list of varieties of the latter, often known as daffodils or jonquils, is almost bewildering, and some of the more vigorous growing kinds may also be established in the lawn in a more or less natural state. Many of the varieties, however, that succeed in this way in England, where the flower is exceedingly popular, will not do so well in this country except in the southern states and on the Pacific coast. Perhaps the best for this purpose are the poeticus varieties, which are certain to be hardy. They should never be planted in the lawn in rows or geometric figures.

An easy method of giving them a naturalized appearance is to scatter the bulbs as if one were sowing seed and then plant them where they happen to fall. This should be done only where it is desired to leave the lawn in a half wild condition, for the grass cannot be cut until the foliage begins to die, which will be a few weeks after the appearance of the flowers. In many of the parks of the large estates of England, in portions of North Carolina, on estates along the James river in Virginia and even in old New England gardens narcissuses that were planted many years ago are still vigorous and produce every spring a beautiful display of blossoms.

Tulips may also be obtained in many varieties, and by making the proper selection they will give a succession of blooms for several weeks. No attempt should be made to utilize them except in the border or the formal bed.

Coming after all except the latest tulips is the Spanish iris, and, though one of the most attractive for the border, it is one of the cheapest of bulbs, often being called "the poor man's orchid." To be most effective it should be planted in groups or masses of the same kind.

All of these bulbs will do well in moderately rich loam that is well drained, but they will often succeed very well in less favorable conditions. If they are to be planted in the border or in beds the soil should be worked deep, but no manure should come in contact with the narcissus, crocus or Spanish iris, though well rotted manure may be worked into the soil where tulips are to be planted.

The depth at which bulbs should be planted varies with the soil, light soils requiring deeper planting than heavy, and with the size of the bulb. As a rule, crocus may be planted three inches and Spanish iris four inches deep. Narcissus should have from four to five inches of soil above the bulb and should be five to six inches distant from each other. Tulips should be four inches below the surface and six inches apart each way.

Sawhorse Attachment For Short Sticks.

When it is necessary to saw a few short pieces the ordinary sawhorse is an unhandy place to hold the wood, says a writer in Popular Mechanics. As I had a great many short pieces to cut for a small round stove, I made an attachment, as shown in the illustration, that would hold a stick regardless of its length.

The attachment consists of four pieces of board, two of which are joined together in the same manner as the crossed pieces for the sawhorse ends, but in such a position that they will hang over the center crossbar and make the depth of the yoke the same as that of the sawhorse. The end of one piece bears against a board that is fastened to the front pieces of the sawhorse.

Another piece, hinged to the lower end of the opposite center yoke piece, is provided with notches or a rack made of nails to engage the upper edge of the board, as shown. The manner of using the device is obvious.

Mow in the Afternoon.

There is a difference between air dried and sun burned hay. If you cut the grass late in the day much of the water in it passes off through the leaves and you get a fine quality of air dried hay containing practically all the nourishment in the plant. But if you start the mower in the morning the hot sun burns the leaves before they can evaporate the water. Then you wonder why your stock does not do well, although they have plenty of nice hay.—Farm Progress.

Financial Backing.

"What you must do, son, is to lay the foundation for a solid business success."

"That's my idea, dad. Now, first of all, I require sound financial backing."

"I get you, son. I'll provide car fare until you land a job."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

KINGSTON, N. Y., NOV., 5, 1915.

The election of County Judge Albert H. F. Seeger of Orange county to the Supreme Court bench in the Ninth District will be almost as satisfactory to the people of Ulster county as though one of her own sons had been elevated to that position. The fight against Judge Seeger and his associate on the ticket, Former District Attorney J Addison Young of New Rochelle, was extremely bitter. Against either of them personally no word that was not complimentary could be uttered; their record both public and private was too clear for even the slightest flaw to be found. The issue raised against them, therefore, was that because Supreme Court Justice Tompkins of Nyack, a Republican, had opposed the bill creating the two new justiceships in the Ninth District, and because the bill had been passed by a Republican legislature, and approved by a Republican governor and they happened to be Republicans, they should be defeated. Neither Judge Seeger nor Mr. Young was selected for nomination because of his political activity, but because of his marked legal ability, integrity and judicial temperament. Judge Tompkins having opposed the bill conscientiously, like a good citizen announced that he would abide not only by the law-making and executive power of the state, but would support these two eminent jurists, and to the same extent that he had opposed the bill before its passage, he undertook to upset any unjust and unfair use which was being made of that attitude by the political opponents of Judge Seeger and Mr. Young. Judge Seeger has presided over two terms of county court in Ulster at the behest of the Ulster county judge. His absolute fairness and impartiality, his deep learning and his abundance of common sense made a deep impression on everyone here, and Ulster's only regret in his elevation to the Supreme Court bench is that she no longer will be able to call on him as a neighbor whom she fully trusts. Ulster doesn't know Mr. Young personally but only by reputation, but for many years she has been fully aware of the fact that Judge Seeger was of Supreme Court size.

After eluding officers for nine months, William V. Cleary has been arrested in Washington on a charge of misappropriating $10,000 of funds belonging to the town of Haverstraw, Rockland county. Cleary was tried for murder last January in Rockland county. He had shot his youthful son-in-law but he was acquitted after a dramatic trial. His acquittal raised a storm of censure against the jury and the district attorney and while they were being grilled an examination of Cleary's accounts revealed alleged irregularities. Cleary's guilt or innocence probably will be determined by a jury but should he be acquitted he never again can enter politics and become as powerful as he once was. There may or may not be a divine law of compensation operating on earth, but apparently men who use positions of trust for their own personal ends fail to benefit thereby in the final reckoning. Aside from anything Cleary may or may not have done, ill-gotten gains never bring complete happiness and seldom remain in the possession of their holder throughout life. A curse seems to attach to them which, if it does not affect the first generation, follows the mere possession of such gains throughout a family. History should teach men that honesty is the best policy, and if for no other reason honesty should be followed by every man occupying any position of trust. Honesty, like virtue, is not only its own reward, but it brings other rewards in its train.

The fact that eighty-nine per cent of the voters of Ulster county voted on the equal suffrage amendment on Tuesday disillusionizes the dreamer who is satisfied in his or her own mind that the amendment would have been carried "if the people understood it and would vote." The fact is that the people did understand and they did vote—the men did. A great many men voted as their wives or their daughters would have voted if they had been given the opportunity, for most men are influenced by their family and are willing to share their joys as well as their troubles. When the suffrage movement gained sufficient momentum to reach the State legislature two years ago a proposal was made informally to the militant suffragettes that some plan be devised whereby the question might be determined by the women of the state, to ascertain if a majority of the women wanted to be enfranchised. This proposition was not received with any degree of cordiality. Instead, some of the suffragette leaders insisted that the men would not provide for any special election to be held in their interest for women only. By adopting this attitude and insisting that women were being deprived of the rights they should be allowed to share with the men, their cause apparently was stronger and they were in a position, they thought, to excite the sympathetic vote among men. Certainly such an attitude furnished grounds for stronger talk then otherwise would be possible. Tactics like this do not appeal to anybody's sense of fairness and justice and an impression that a cause or any argument used in its support is based on an unfair statement of facts leads inevitably to the relegation of such a cause to the scrap heap of blasted ambitions. That is where the equal suffrage cause is now.

Well, that was a rattling good campaign, full of "pep" right up to the last minute. The interest in the town ticket overshadowed that of the county and state contest. In fact, the county candidates exhibited in the side show only, while the local boys calloped around in the big three ring tent. As usual Merrihew, the invincible Democrat, carried the town, his majority being 106. Davis, Democrat for town clerk also had an easy time of it, as did Orbin Winchell, Democrat for collector. But on town superintendent, the Democrats struck a snag and Clarence Moe, Republican came up smiling with 32 majority. Moe's run in the 1st was phenomenal, his lead being 112. For assessor, Clyde Winchell, Republican, ran 30 ahead of his opponent, carrying the rock ribbed Democratic 2nd by 8 majority thereby running 9 ahead of his ticket. For judge, Chapman and Bishop, Republicans are safe. Buswell, Democrat, being knocked out by the Samsonville vote. O yes, we knew there was something else, votes for women. Did they carry Olive? Yes, they did not. So the town remains, a Democratic island, surrounded by Republicans. "Born a Democrat and always will be," we suppose. Well, friends lets give the winners our hearty support and as we look out across the big dam, count our blessings one by one. We have our share of them alright.

The Inside of the Hotel

Is the part that counts with the guest. The architect doesn't make a hotel, he only designs it. The builder doesn't make a hotel, he only builds it.

Don't select your stopping place from the outside. Look behind the front wall and see what is back of it.

The success of the Hotel Martinique is the personality back of it, which shows in the lobby, at the desk, in the restaurants and in the rooms.

The telephone attendants, the mail clerks, the room maids, even the bellboys reflect the personality back of the "House of Taylor." We don't preach prices only. We have pleasant, homelike rooms from $1.50 up.

In one and all you will find reflected the careful and insistent idea of guest-service that dominates every moment of your stay.

Located in the Heart of Things, only a golf stroke from the Pennsylvania Depot. On Broadway's throbbing centre. The Martinique is the logical New York home for those on business or pleasure bent.

LLOYD SCHOOLS CORN EXHIBIT

The town of Lloyd school children's corn exhibit was held in the Highland high school on Thursday under the supervision of District Superintendent John U Gillette. The pupils and teachers began to assemble at the high school at nine o'clock with their exhibits of corn and school work. The morning was spent in looking over the splendid exhibits of school work and the long rows of field corn.

It may not be generally known that for several years the Highland high school has been the only school in Ulster county to maintain an agricultural department and a domestic science department. For two years members of the graduating classes have made their own graduating dresses.

The latest addition to the agricultural department consists of land for a chicken yard upon which has been built by the boys of the school an up-to-date chicken house. The supply of fowls have been added and the boys will be taught the care and value of poultry and will be held to strict account as to the cost of maintenance under the instruction of Professor W J Weaver.

The afternoon session was presided over by Principal E. A. Marsh of the Highland high school who made introductory remarks and introduced Superintendent Gillette who reviewed the movement of exhibits and paid a tribute to the loyalty of the principal, teachers, boards of education and pupils towards the uplift of the country schools.

The judges were W. H. Hook, manager of the Farm Bureau, and D. H. Morris, clerk of the board of education. The Grange of Highland furnished $10 for cash prizes. Mr. Hook presented the report of the judges. His address was a stirring one and, in one respect at least, he said this exhibit was the best. He gave the teachers good advice on the subject of school work and school management. Minute speeches were made by many of the teachers.

The prizes were awarded as follows.

Charles Lessing, $5.

WOODSTOCK.

Woodstock, Nov. 5.—The union temperance meeting in the Reformed Church was largely attended last Sunday evening. Several persons prominent citizens, scattered through the town, were present and spoke on the subject of "No License."

Emory Happy and wife, Mrs. Thomas Shultis and Mr. and Mrs. G O. Wilsey motored to Catskill Monday evening to hear an address on "No License" made by Clinton N Howard of Rochester.

The town of Woodstock voted not to build the concrete bridge opposite Cornelius Risley's, also not to lease the road roller, leased last summer.

Notwithstanding the efforts of the license men of the town to get out every wet voter, and the expense involved, the town was voted dry by sixty-two majority. There is considerable depression among the license people, but if more liquor is consumed under the no-license than under license, why is this depression, and why the cursing of the temperance people?

Mr Parker is to erect a stone house on his estate which house will cost $15,000. Fred Happy and sons have the contract for the lumber for inside work. It is to be commenced this fall.

St. John's Men's Club.

The men's meeting of St. John's Club was well attended and the subject Serbia, its Political Significance" was well handled by the Rev Chas T Kenedy, followed by a general discussion of the many sources which contributed to the present war. The discussion was closed by the call to refreshments by the able caterer, George DuBois. The next regular meeting will be held Thursday, December 2. Speaker and subject to be announced by the executive committee.

KING OF GREECE ON THE WALL.

KING OF GREECE IN CHARACTERISTIC ATTITUDE.

This picture shows the King of Greece on a fence watching his troops at drill. It is symbolic of his present political position in which he has been wavering between the allies and central powers for months. He has decided, it seems, to enjoy the safety of the fence top and remain there indefinitely, or until such a time, at least, when he can no longer find security on the fence and will be forced to drop off on one side or the other.

HIGHLAND.

Highland, Nov. 4.—Daughters of America observed their second anniversary Wednesday evening. There was present about 130 people, guests from Kingston, Newburgh and Poughkeepsie. Some representatives there. All were received by the conductor, Mrs. R. H. Decker, and Warden Miss Emma Paltridge. They initiated one candidate; had a great deal of business and their rooms were beautifully decorated with bunting and American flags, emblematic of their order. Mrs. Philip Schantz was the pianist of the evening and also sang selections in her sweet and artistic manner. Mrs. Jordon, councilor, and Mrs. Kurtz, past councilor, shared honors in the initiatory work. The captain, Mrs. Aldrich, and team did fine work and all the officers at other stations did very effective work. These people are to be congratulated. While they are a young organization their floor work has been highly complimented. We were informed by a member that at the close of work refreshments, consisting of sandwiches, chicken salad, marmalade and jelly, pickles, celery, sliced oranges and bananas, several varieties of cake and coffee, were served, which at the late hour were greatly appreciated by every one. This pleasantly ended the social hour, and good night was said and expressions of we wish you success on your third year tour and that your next anniversary may be as delightful as the one just passed.

Suffrage people had a jolly time Monday evening. They went to the river bank known as the old Bellevue Villa site and had a big bon fire or beacon light, as some termed it. There were a few short speeches in regard to the franchise and to cap the climax they enjoyed a frankfurter and potato roast and the suffragists made the good things to eat suffer and they even thought that they would be willing to work again for a good cause for with it all they have had such grand times.

New Overcoat is Sensible

Society Brand Clothes

Let's all take a good long breath of relief that the new overcoat model is sensible.

Just outlines the figure; looks manly; has ginger, is not fashion-platelsh.

That is the University Model

Athletic young fellows will like it. Staid men of sober taste will like it.

Fabrics are splendid too.

Soft refined weaves and equally soft and refined patterns mark them.

Rich plain colors, quiet checks, mixtures as modest as the mist of morning, plaids that have true good taste.

The way an overcoat hangs from the shoulders decides its good looks and good fit. Nobody knows quite so well how to do the trick as Society Brand and Hickey Freeman.

Whoever asks proofs will find it ready in this big family of overcoats at $15 and $18.

There is true and excellent value at each price but we think more men will be more pleased with those coats at

$20 $22.50 $25

You'll know why we think this, when you see the coats.

TESTING A SHELL.

Ordeals Through Which a Big Gun Missile Must Pass.

THE SOFT NOSE PROJECTILE.

Its Ability to Bore Its Way Through Heavy Armor Plate Without Exploding Until After Its Impact Was Discovered by Accident.

Everybody knows that the modern shell is one of the most diabolical of man's inventions, but how many of us realize that it is also one of the most delicate and complicated?

Recently some firms holding contracts for making high explosive shells took upon themselves to "correct" a detail in the specification, and, as a result, a certain thread was "improved." They will never do anything of the kind again, because all their work was rejected. The apparent absurdity—it is, in fact, an absolute absurdity, from an engineering point of view—is designed of set purpose.

There is a somewhat similar anomaly in the big shell for penetrating armor plating, which was introduced in consequence of an accident. One day a test shell was fired at a piece of armor plating from the soft side, and the projectile went clean through it and exploded after impact, whereas a similar shell fired against the front—the hardened and tempered side—shattered and left an indentation of only a few inches.

This singular incident set somebody thinking, and in consequence the high explosive armor piercing shell is now given a soft nose. To the hard point is attached a cap of soft metal, with which addition it will go through the toughest piece of armor plate. What happens on impact seems to be this: The cap spreads, holding the point and so enabling it- remember that the shell is revolving rapidly—to force its way unbroken through the hard face of the plate by a sort of boring action.

No less curious is another fact concerning the points of such projectiles. After the heads have been worked the shells are left for weeks before they undergo the next stage, because, strong as they look, they are liable to snap.

Why? Think of the razor. Constant stropping twists the grain, with the result that the steel gets "tired" and will not yield a keen edge. But if you put the thing away for a few weeks the grain will return to its normal state, and you can get a satisfactory shave. In a similar way the grain of the steel is affected by working, though of course to a much greater extent, and until it is "set" the makers must go cautiously.

Steel shows a like eccentricity in the making of test gauges. Some of the measurements of shells are very fine, and the instruments employed are so delicate that they have to be used quickly lest the heat of the hand causes the metal to expand.

Now, when a groove is cut in a piece of steel which is to be used as a test gauge the work is laid aside for weeks, perhaps months. Why not finish it at once? Because the groove, though dead true when cut out, may be otherwise in a short time [illegible] absolutely untouched.

As a concrete proof of the elaborate nature of projectile making take the case of the shrapnel shell. The steel portion undergoes about a score of operations, and the brass cartridge case attached to the base requires about sixteen, counting from the disk of sheet brass to the finished article. Then there is the fuse, the delicacy of which resembles watchmaking.

Altogether the shell is subjected to about forty inspections and may be rejected at any stage.

After a shell has survived this ordeal it ought to be, one would think, perfect, but a test shell is taken from every 120 and actually fired from a gun into a bank of sand. It is then again examined, and if the contour about the powder pocket is expanded away goes the whole batch, because if they were fired the grooving might be torn out of the gun.

Perhaps the most striking illustration of the minute care exercised in projectile making is that every shell is weighed over and over again. If you produce an eighteen pounder high explosive shell it must be only a few drams over or under its normal weight; otherwise it is rejected.

In this connection it may be of interest to note that an explosive shell that weighs only about seventy pounds will break into a shower of some 1,200 pieces. A single one of the monster projectiles fired from a fifteen inch naval gun will weigh 1,950 pounds. It takes twelve seconds for the projectile of a twelve inch naval gun to reach its point of impact when firing at a range of five miles. To fire a battleship broadside costs about $20,000.—Exchange.

"Oh, mother!" exclaimed the tender hearted little Frances, coming in from school with tears in her eyes. "There was the pitifullest little orphan there today! He had holes in his stockings an' all his clothes, an' his shoes weren't alike, an' he hadn't any hat. It made me cry to look at him. He was the orphanest little boy I ever saw. Oh, I just know that poor child's father an' mother's both orphans too!"—Pittsburgh Press.

WATCH SORE THROATS

because swollen glands or inflamed membranes often affect other tissues and lung trouble easily follows.

As Nature's corrector of throat troubles the pure cod liver oil in Scott's Emulsion is speedily converted into germ-resisting tissue; its tested glycerine is curative and healing, while this wholesome emulsion relieves the trouble and upbuilds the forces to resist tubercular germs and avert the weakening influence which usually follows.

If any member of your family has a tender throat, get a bottle of Scott's Emulsion to-day. Physicians prescribe it to avert throat troubles, overcome bronchial disorders and strengthen the lungs. No alcohol or harmful drugs. Always insist on Scott's.

HURLEY.

Hurley, Nov. 4.—On Wednesday, November 3, a most interesting and valuable feature of the work done in our district school was made, when two young women from the New Paltz Normal School came to the school by arrangement between Miss Burnett, our district superintendent, and Miss Swan, of the physical training department of the normal school. The young ladies, Miss Helen Williams and Miss Catharine Humphrey, both of Kingston, were given the courtesy of both rooms and during both sessions exercised the scholars in varied and beneficial body gymnastic exercises, which were most enthusiastically entered into as well as enjoyed by the scholars and those present. Besides these exercises, the young ladies gave drill in rapid arithmetical reckoning, the salient feature being the developing an alertness of mind and accuracy of thought. There were also lessons in drawing and coloring. All these features were most eagerly received and carried out. There were also some very interesting games played out doors where the children's attention was constantly called into action. The visiting ladies are to be heartily praised for the thoroughness and pleasing manner with which they managed their matters with the children, imparting some of their own interest and enthusiasm to the scholars, who showed their appreciation by a vote of thanks to both the young ladies and are eagerly awaiting a promised visit later on. The demonstration was certainly of much benefit to the school and highly appreciated.

Economy Hints

TIME and money may be saved in the kitchen by typewriting your menus for a week, one day's three meals on a sheet, and hanging these sheets on the outside of the door of the kitchen cabinet. Have a hook for that purpose and beside it a hook for a pencil on a string. Require your maid to write upon each sheet the things that must be ordered from the shopkeepers on that day. Not only does this help immensely with the day's marketing, but the sheets kept on file in her desk will show a woman how often each commodity is being purchased and will locate waste when it occurs.

The separate leaves have this advantage. "Throw nothing away" is the slogan of a good kitchen. If on Monday night, when Monday's sheet is taken down, there are leftovers in the icebox, five minutes' colloquy between servant and mistress will decide upon the use of these, and Tuesday's menu sheet can be revised to utilize them.

The wise woman will teach her maid to read gas meters and electric light meters and carefully watch them to note consumption indicated on each. She will keep, too, a file of old readings. "If you can use light and fuel carefully enough to reduce these amounts I will pay you what you save," she will say.

The experiment seldom fails. A girl is happy to earn that extra money, and her mistress does not lose thereby. It raises the maid's wages, which is, after all, her chief concern.

In one kitchen where this plan is carried out a typewritten sheet hangs upon the wall between the stove and the table. "Ways to save gas in cooking," it says. There were twenty ways, all of which any good housekeeper's intelligence would suggest with a little thought.

A BEAUTY HINT.

How to Shampoo Gray Hair and Keep It Beautiful.

Don't dye gray hair. It is a never ending, messy job to keep it touched up, for most hair grows about an inch a month, and, worst or least of all, the deception rarely deceives any one. The lines that care and experience and thought have written into every mature face require the softening effect of the silver tones above it. Dyed hair has a hardening effect on some faces, and to others it gives an almost cruel look.

But once having accepted gray hair make of it your greatest beauty. It must be kept spotlessly clean, washed often. Use only the best and purest liquid soap, as free from alkali as possible, and treat it as the laundress does her fine linen. Put it through many rinsings to get rid of every particle of soap, the last one being quite cool and deep blue with indigo. Let the hair rest in this for a few moments, moving it about in the bath so as to absorb as much of the bluing as possible, and then dry it thoroughly with warm towels and vigorous rubbing. The bluing serves to soften the dulled, lifeless look which always results from washing gray hair and gives uniformity of shading. Streaked locks in gray hair are its worst feature, and especially is this true of blond gray hair.

Rub the scalp then with white vaseline, taking care not to let it get upon the hair, and brush it—brush it vigorously night and morning to give it the silvery gleaming that is so beautiful in well kept gray hair.

How to Combine Vegetables With Other Foods For Dinner.

Serve tomatoes in some form with veal.

Serve caper sauce only with mutton.

With roast lamb serve mashed potatoes, green peas or string beans and mint sauce.

With roast chicken serve mashed potatoes, onions and a sour jelly.

Any vegetable harmonizes with beef.

With roast beef serve potatoes baked in the pan and a sweet watermelon or peach pickle.

With roast pork serve baked potatoes, a green vegetable and a sour apple sauce.

With broiled steak serve creamed potatoes and a crisp fried vegetable like egg plant.

With fricassed meats serve baked potatoes.

With roast meats serve potatoes mashed or roasted in the pan with the meat.

Serve potatoes plain boiled when new.

How to Quiet a Crying Baby by Adjusting Its Clothes.

Fits of crying, indicative of discomfort if not pain, in babies, usually after meals, are quite naturally attributed almost universally to the food. It would be well, however, if attention were given to the clothes at the same time, if there are no other indications of the diet given disagreeing with the baby, for in very many cases these are to blame. Very often there is something tight around the little abdomen, the binder, to which mother and nurses cling so jealously, being frequently at fault.

MAKE EXERCISE PLAY.

To Get the Best Results It Must Be Thoroughly Enjoyed.

When you exercise, play. That is one of the points most strongly urged to the attention of the public in recently published public health reports.

No matter whether you are walking, gardening, exercising in a gymnasium or playing golf, keep your exercise free from the spirit of drudgery and make it all recreation. Make it as enjoyable as anything you may do throughout the entire day. If you don't much of the good that it might do you is lost. The very best thing a man can do, says the report, is to make a hobby of his exercise. No matter how poor the hobby, if it induces outdoor exercise it is perfectly justifiable.

"The man who is obliged to take his baby out for a two hours' airing every day is far more fortunate than she often realizes.

"The only advice the report offers the man who is going to take up a hobby for the benefit of the resulting exercise is to choose one that permits of doing following the year round rather than one that depends upon seasons of the year. For that reason [illegible] our gardener or golf [illegible] fancier is far more fortunate than the amateur golfer, tennist or cricketer. The latter must wait on the seasons and most God favorable [illegible] for indulging their hobbies, while the former have year round pastimes.

"Careful thought has more to do with discomfort than all the troubles that can assail us.

Lay's Saturday Sale

If you judged us merely by the splendid qualities of meats we sell, you would say that our prices must be high; but you would make a mistake. If you were familiar with our way of doing business, you would say that our prices must be and are as low as the lowest, and you would be right. We long ago realized that a combination of high-grade meats and moderate prices would build up our business faster than it could be increased in any other way. As our ambition has always been to make this market more popular, and as we will not handle inferior meats, you will agree that our policy has been a winner. Our home-made products—Bolognas, Frankfurters, Wiener Wurst, Pork Sausage, Liverwurst, Headcheese, etc., have contributed largely to our remarkable success.

Delicious Raisin Bread

We have a new and better raisin bread now on sale. It is called "California Raisin Bread made with SUN-MAID RAISINS." The raisins are big, tender, meaty, luscious—with all the seeds extracted. Their flavor permeates the loaf.

There's a revelation in bread like this—for those who have never tried it. And it's food that's both good and good for you.

An economical food also because raisins are concentrated nutriment.

Let the children have it. Here are the sweets they want, in the most healthful form, served in the way they like them. Get a loaf today.

California Raisin Bread
Made With SUN-MAID RAISINS

You will like this Raisin Bread because it is made with this kind of raisins

Many pounds of the most delicate California white grapes are required to fill a pound carton with these raisins. We select the cream of the crop—grapes that never reach northern markets—and sun-cure them in the open vineyards.

Three forms: Seeded (large plump raisins with seeds extracted); Seedless (made from seedless grapes); Cluster (choice specimen bunches on stems, not seeded). In the familiar pound cartons at all grocers.

PLUTARCH.

Plutarch, Nov. 4.—The members of the Young Men's Club with their wives and lady friends enjoyed a Hallowe'en supper at their rooms on Saturday evening. The rooms were decorated with crepe paper, corn and Jack-o'-lanterns. The evening was spent with music and games. All had a most enjoyable time.

CHURCH LEAGUES NEED ONE ENTRY

One more entry is needed in both the Church Indoor Baseball League and the Church Basketball League to be started this month at the Y. M. C. A. and as soon as the entries are received the league will be started. At the present time Physical Director Godfrey has heard from eight churches and five teams have been entered in the basketball league and seven teams in the indoor baseball leagues. In order to make a more even schedule, Mr. Godfrey would like to have at least 6 teams for basketball and 8 teams for baseball. Some of the churches have entered a team in each league.

The entries so far received in the leagues are:

Holy Cross, a basketball team.

Rondout Presbyterian Church, a team in each league.

Trininty M. E. Church, a team in each league.

First Presbyterian Church, a team in each league.

Clinton Avenue M. E. Church, a team in each league.

St. John's Church, a baseball team.

Wurts Street Baptist Church, a baseball team.

First Reformed Church, a baseball team.

Bowling League to be Started.

Physical Director Godfrey, also expects to start a church bowling league the last of the month. Players in this league will be limited to those who have an average of 150 a game. Teams so far entered are from the Albany Avenue Baptist Church, Rondout Presbyterian Church and the Wurts Street Baptist Church. Mr. Godfrey is anxious to hear from the other churches so that the league may be started as soon as possible.

Ladies' Aid Meeting.

Although not a very pleasant afternoon out of doors, indoors in the lecture room of the Church of the Comforter where the Ladies' Aid Society was holding its regular monthly meeting, everything was cheerful. The new seats added to the comfort of the society, and lend themselves well in forming the circle, which the president always arranges at once upon her arrival It's no wonder to those who attend these meetings that the society is constantly growing, so fully one enjoys oneself The opening of the meetings is in charge of the religious committee, of which Mrs. R D Peters, is chairman The meeting was opened by singing, with Mrs. Peters at the piano, followed by reading the 91st Psalm by the same After routine matters were disposed of the following plans were adopted: The fair that has been held annually in the parsonage will be omitted this year. Also the chicken pie supper planned for in the October meeting. A New England dinner will be served December 3 in the lecture room of the church. A special meeting of the society is to be held November 17 to perfect arrangements for it. It was regretted that the very capable and efficient chairman of the social committee was absent and the president called on every member to show their appreciation of Mrs. Charles De Forest's work by assisting and relieving her as much as possible. As is well known the position of social chairman is no easy one And Mrs. DeForest has served faithfully and successfully and that particularly she is to be relieved of the work of soliciting. A fitting close to such an afternoon was the recital of the Lord's Prayer in concert

Mrs. Harry Davis and children spent a few days with her father, Frank Snyder in Katrine last week

Lawrence Osterhoudt of New Paltz has been a guest at the home of his brother, Arthur Osterhoudt.

The masquerade given by the T. X. T. Club last week was a very enjoyable affair, the costumes being varied and pretty, while the club house presented an unusually pretty appearance with the Hallowe'en decorations of jack lanterns, corn stalks and etc.

Raymond Osterhoudt spent the week end with relatives in Kingston.

The lower Flatbush school is closed on account of diptheria amog the pupils.

Mr. and Mrs. William Kieffer enjoyed an auto ride to the Ashokan dam Sunday with friends from Katrine.

Miss Annabel Pearson, who is teaching school at Woodstock, has been home for a few days.

Miss Anna Snyder of Katrine has been the guest of her sister, Mrs. Harry C. Davis.

Mrs. John Thomas is visiting relatives in Poughkeepsie.

Some of our youngsters enjoyed playing the usual Hallowe'en tricks but have not heard of any damage being done.

Miss Ada Pearson has been confined to the house with rheumatism.

Peter Ten Broeck is having his house raised and otherwise improved. Henry Swart has charge of the work.

Abram Rappleyea of Kingston spent Monday with his mother here.

Arthur Woolsey has bought an automobile.

The farmers through here are still very busy picking and shipping apples.

Real vs. Ideal.

Rural Visitor—"Doesn't it cost an awful lot to live in the city?" Native—"No, it doesn't cost so much to live; it's trying to keep up appearances is what paralyzes a man's bank account."

MISS MARY CHEMIELEWSKA.

SEEKS LIVING DEATH AS NURSE TO LEPERS.

New York, Nov. 5.—A young and beautiful New York girl has just declared her intention to become a nurse and join the leper colony in far-off Molokai. The young woman to chose this living death is Miss Mary Chemielewska, a twenty year old parishioner of St. Casimir's church.

Miss Chemielewska has gone to Syracuse, the mother home of the Franciscan nuns, where after a novitiate of several months, during which time she will be instructed in nursing, she will leave for the Hawaiian Islands.

The colony she will join is the one where Father Damien labored and died. It is one of the most desolate islands of the Hawaiian group.

MOMBACCUS HEIGHTS.

Mombaccus Heights, Nov. 4.—The Misses Josie and Emilie Van Etten and brother Harold, Mr. and Mrs. Jesse McDonald and family spent a pleasant evening with A. M. Green and family Wednesday of last week

Rev A. Quick and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Smith, the Misses Josie and Emilie Van Etten, Henry Smith and several others attended the hot chicken supper at Mombaccus on Saturday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Quick were packing apples at Freeman Roosa's at Palentown on Tuesday.

Another deer was shot here Tuesday in the open, close to the home of F. P. Smith. As there were several persons at the execution and more than one gun went off, there is some doubt as to who fired the lucky shot.

A few young people from this place attended the temperance meeting at Palentown on Sunday evening.

Marcus Dunn of this place was fortunate enough to shoot a deer on the mountain in this vicinity on Monday He was assisted in the removal of the remains to his home by his companion in the chase, Melbourne Green, who shared in the spoils.

Mrs Leonard Van Etten, who has been visiting friends in Bloomington and Flatbush, returned home Saturday. Her son, Harold, returned Monday after a week end visit with his brother, Robert, at Bloomington.

Andrew Simpson of Briar Cliff spent a day or two last week with friends in this place.

Justice Van Etten met with the town board at Accord on Saturday.

F. P. Smith and William Depuy were witnesses in the Turner Gray law suit at Kingston last week.

Several members from Palentown attended the meeting at the Morehouse home on Sunday morning.

A party of hunters from Wawarsing are camping in the mountain near Vernooy's Falls.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Smith with their father and brother autoed to Ellenville and Kingston on Monday.

The four young men who started out on a hunting trip Monday returned Tuesday with a half dozen partridges.

COST OF LIVING REDUCED AT

Planthaber's Saturday

We are all the time trying to better our values and our service—to make our store more interesting and more helpful to the housekeepers of this community. We buy largely from wholesalers that are able to sell a higher grade of food articles for the same money, or the same quality for less money. This tends to reduce the cost to our customers, for our invariable rule is to mark everything at the smallest possible advance on what we pay ourselves.

Come here and let us fill your market basket Saturday. The savings we'll make possible will amply repay you for your time and trouble.

BEATEN BEFORE THEY START

Sometimes a contestant in an athletic meet is so poorly prepared or so nervous that he is "beaten before he starts."

How about the shopper who goes forth unprepared as compared with another who knows just where to go and what to get?

The prepared one uses head to save heels and pocketbook, and wins the race every time.

Newspaper advertising is scanned in advance and all possible information secured.

There is no question as to which shopper profits most.

ADVERTISERS ESTIMATE THE VALUE BY THE CIRCULATION.

And The Freeman has a circulation double that of all other Kingston dailies combined.

A Creature From the Fire.

Aristotle believed that some creatures were capable of supporting life even though confined to the devouring element. He says: "In Cyprus, when the manufacturers of chalcitis (lime) burn it many days in the fire, a winged creature something larger than a great fly is seen emerging from the stone and leaping and walking about in the fire. These creatures perish immediately upon being removed from the furnace."

Saving the Innocent Ones.

Governor Stewart of Missouri once found eight convicts mowing the grass of the statehouse lawn. He questioned them. Seven of them said they were innocent men. The eighth said, "I stole er hawg, sub, an' it was a mos' 'stonishing good hawg!"

"You're pardoned!" Stewart thundered. "Leave the prison at once. We must preserve our innocent convicts from contamination."

The Too Good Man

His Kindness Is Always Repelled.

By M. QUAD

Copyright, 1915, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate

I've figured it up with slate and pencil and I've chalked it down and added it up and subtracted it and multipled it on the barn door, but it always comes out the same—the too good man has no place in this world. He is a sort of cross between a burdock and a sunflower—not ornamental enough for wear nor good enough eating for cows.

Coming up from Red Bank the other day I followed an old man into the passenger coach. I had noticed him on the platform, and I recognized him as belonging to the species I have named.

The train had scarcely begun to move when my too good man, who had a rear seat, rose up and announced:

"Don't nobody be skeered, now. This hain't no collision. It's just like they allus move off. I've rid on 'em more'n a dozen times, and I'll tell you when to jump off."

Everybody looked at him, while some deluded him with smiles meant to be encouraging. He stowed away his satchel and removed an old slouch hat he had been wearing.

There was a woman sitting alone a few seats down the aisle. She had an umbrella, a bundle secured with a shawl strap and two or three parcels on the seat, and as Uncle Jerry passed down the aisle he stopped before her and cheerfully observed:

"Thee kinder familiar to me, but I can't remember your name. Never been much h of a hand at remembering names, anyhow. Husband new around and helped ye to git ready, I suppose? Leave the children all right? Been lots o' measles around this yeer. Didn't leave the outside cellar door open, did ye?"

"I don't know ye," she said as she looked up.

"What! Hain't ye Hanner Jones of Jones' Cross-roads?"

"No, sir."

"Waal, I swow! I'd bet a two-year-old steer agin a cider bar'l that ye wae."

The next one he accosted was a man fully as old as himself whose crown was bald and who wore spectacles. He was reading a letter, which he had taken from a corn colored envelope, when Uncle Jerry gave him a playful poke in the ribs and called out:

"Lands, you look just like my brother Bill across the back and head. Goin' somewhar, I s'pose."

"Who did that?" testily exclaimed the old man as he looked up.

"I kinder poked ye, but it hain't nuthin' to git mad at," replied Uncle Jerry. "Folks all well at home, I hope. How'd yer taters keep last winter? Heir any demand fur turnips lately?"

"I want you to stop, I say!" yelled the old man as he waved his arms around.

"Then I will. If ye are so techy as all that I don't want nuthin' to do with ye. Lucky that ye hain't goin' to run fur supervisor in my town. You wouldn't git a blamed vote. Howdy do, naybur?"

This last remark was addressed to a rather savage looking man with a weed on his hat who was reading a magazine.

"I warn you to go on," said the man. "I'm wacked! I'm tuff! I'll hurt ye!"

"By squash, but what a feller ye be! Haul right off and plunk me 'cause I want to be friendly, eh?"

He seemed to be a bit discouraged for a moment, but presently his eye caught the figures of two females at the far end of the car, and he edged along down to see if anything was wanted in his line. The two were mother and daughter, and the latter didn't look well.

"Did she fall down the cellar stairs or pitch off the haymow?" kindly inquired Uncle Jerry as he sat down on the rail of the seat.

"Are ye speakin' of me darter?" demanded the mother.

"Zactly. Doesn't look just right for this time of the year. If I'd only thought I'd brung along a bunch o' mayweed and told ye how to make tea of it. Beats all creation how mayweed takes the kinks out of the system. She ain't in luv, is she?"

"Sir!"

"Naybur o' mine had a gal about her age who began to ravel out and fade away. They put horseradish drafts to her feet, mustard plasters to her neck and dosed her with catnip, mayweed and sage tea, but she continued to fake off and fade in the wash and finally died. When too late they diskivered she had all along bin in luv with Bill Hawes, my hired man, who was so gaul durned bashful that he dassn't say a word about it. Better begin to hunt around the grass and see if somethin' of that sort ain't troublin' her."

"You old critter, go away from here with yer blarney or I'll be the death of ye!" shouted the mother, and as he jumped back she pulled the girl out into the aisle beside her and waved her umbrella in a threatening manner.

"W-what's the rumpus now?" gasped Uncle Jerry in great astonishment.

"If ye don't go I'll call the police!"

"Waal, by gum, if I was to tell this to Lucy when I git home she'd say I fell asleep and had the nightmare. Don't none o' ye seem to want to be sympathized with. I'll go. I'll git right away, and if I had a bull sack of dried catnip and two dozen red peppers here I'd let the whole caboodle of ye suffer. Waal, I just won't say another word. I'm dished if I dew."

SOCIETY NOTES.

Announcement has been made of the engagement of Miss Frances E. Weed of Catskill and W. Mace Laraway of Oak Hill, Greene county. The bride to be is a niece of George Palmer of this city.

Mrs Philip Elting, acting regent of Wiltwyck Chapter, D. A. R. Mrs. Elvah Bogart and Mrs. Stafford, members of the chapter, have been in New York attending the State Conference of the Daughters of the American Revolution, held at Hoel Astor.

Mr and Mrs. Morris Brown of Albany, parents of Joseph, Harris and John Brown of Kingston, will celebrate the fiftieth anniversary of their wedding on Sunday. There are five other children. The couple were married in Russia and came to this country 38 years ago.

This evening a euchre and five hundred will be held in St. Mary's School Hall, the play being followed by dancing. Delicious refreshments will be served. As the proceeds will be for the Home of the Holy Childhood it is hoped that the hall will be filled by the generous friends of the orphans.

The members of the Ladies' Helping Aid Society held their annual motor ride on Thursday, chartering Hiltebrant's large auto stage to convey them to Newburgh, where luncheon was partaken of. The trip down was by way of New Paltz and Modena and the return was by way of Highland. Those in the party were Mrs. Mary Schultz, Mrs. Lillian Smith, Mrs. Abrams, Mrs. Pauline Schick, Mrs. Josephine Barringer, Mrs Rebecca Thompson, Mrs. Meta Barringer, Miss Sarah Fisher, Mrs. Barbara Drautz, Mrs. Amelia Bode, Mrs. Margaret Myers, Mrs. Mary Osterhoudt, Mrs. Susan Thompson, Mrs. Elizabeth Schuster, Mrs. Irene Holstein and Mrs. Kate Schultz.

It was decided to have a fancy article booth at which many beautiful and useful articles will be sold at a low cost, of which Mrs. Morris, Mrs. Joslovitz, and Miss Rose Klein were appointed in charge. A candy booth, which will be in charge of the Misses Sophia Kaplan and Rae Wolff and a cigar booth with the Misses Helen Stern and Sarah Silverman in charge. There will also be refreshments consisting of all kinds of sandwiches, coffee, cake and ice cream, which will be under the good supervision of the Misses Gussie Millens, Bessie Stone, Jeannette Wolf and Mary Abrahams. Carnations will be sold by the Misses Celia Friedman and Anna Cassler. The music will be furnished by Miller's orchestra and as the public knows the organization's purpose—charity—it is hoped the small admission of 25 cents will not interfere with anyone's needs, so that the hall will be taxed to its capacity both nights.

Thursday evening Miss Elizabeth Corrigan tendered Miss Anna J. Hutton of Rogers street a linen shower at No. 241 Wall street in honor of Miss Hutton's approaching marriage to Hugh McCullough of Hone street which will take place in the near future. The house was beautifully and artistically decorated for the occasion, the color scheme being pink and white. Coming events cast their shadow before and while the wedding march was being played by Mrs. Charles Hoag a miniature bride and groom in the persons of Master George. Gerard Flynn and Miss Katherine Taubenberger walked into the large parlor where the guests were assembled while the litle flower girl, Miss Isabelle Flynn, presented Miss Hutton with a basket of linen and flowers. The guests later gathered in the dining room where covers had been laid for sixteen. The event was one of the most charming of the social season. A fine repast was served. Mr. Inness has presented the club with a new piano.

Turkey Dinner.

Conrad J. Heiselman of West Chestnut street entertained a circle of his friends at a turkey dinner, at the home of his mother, Mrs. J. Heiselman. A genuine Ulster county chestnut-fed turkey of twenty-seven pounds graced the center of the table. He was the pick and pride of the royal flock of Fred C. Lang. All the extras usually found at such dinners were there in great abundance. Some there were not usually found on such occasions. The guests sat down to eat at 7:15 o'clock. By 10 o'clock all were at peace with all the world and each other. After the dinner the party was entertained by a Grafonola concert and singing. The party did not end until the small hours of the morning. Mrs. J. Heiselman lived up to the reputation that has ever been held by her race for good cooking. The following were present: Andrew Schrader, Harry Wieber, Harry Rieser, Fred W Weber, Edgar N. Miers, Conrad J. Heiselman, Conrad Drautz, Edward L Kolts, R. G. Walter, Fred C. Lang, Pastor H. E. Mrs De La Porte had a short historic paper on "The Formation of the West India Company," in which Mattys Jansen Van Keuren, ancestor of many prominent Kingstonians, figured quite conspiciously. The program was brought to a close by a charming duet, sung by Mrs. Morris and Mr. Vogt, entitled, "Wicked Cupid." Following the program, Mrs. William Davis and Mrs. George Hounness, as hostesses, served afternoon tea.

Evening of Music.

The musical people of this city are promised a real treat in the evening of music to be given at Association Hall, on Monday evening, November 22nd. by Oscar Seagle, baritone, of New York, Miss Elise Hasbrouck and Harry P. Dodge of this city. Mr. Seagle, with whom Miss Hasbrouck has been studying in New York for the past two years, has received the highest encomiums from the musical press of this country and Europe Henderson, musical critic of the New York Sun says of Mr. Seagle, "He has a powerful and sonorous voice. His interpretation is exquisitely tasteful and finished. He is an artist of singularly fine instincts and his judgment is of the ripest kind. He is one of the best equipped and most delightful recital singers now before the public." The musical people of Kingston have been expressing a desire to hear Seagle for some time, and will hail with delight this opportunity. Miss Hasbrouck has been heard but a few times in her home city of late, but when heard she has surprised and delighted those who were so fortunate as to hear her sing. Harry P Dodge at the piano always charms his hearers with the excellence and skill of his piano playing, whether as a soloist or an accompanist. A recital given by such talent, should fill the auditorium of the Y. M. C. A. building.

Williams-Silkworth.

Miss Laura May Silkworth of Ardonia and Thomas Williams of Poughkeepsie were married at the Modena M. E. Church on Monday afternoon at 1 o'clock by the Rev. Mr. Hawley. The church was prettily decorated with palms, ferns and chyrsanthemums. Miss Nellie Sheehan of Poughkeepsie was maid of honor and the Misses Rosella and Lillian Silkworth, nieces of the bride, were flower girls. The best man was George Luft of Goshen. Eugene Doran of Middletown and Arthur Silkworth, brother of the bride, were ushers. The bride wore a robe of white crepe de chine and duchess lace and her veil fell from a lace cap Bride's roses and lilies of the valley composed her bouquet. The maid wore turquoise blue crepe de chine with black velvet hat and carried pink roses The flower girls wore blue silk and carried baskets of flowers. The bride's gift to the maid of honor was a beautiful brooch and to the flower girls signet rings The best man and ushers received gold cuff links. The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Silkworth of Ardonia and is a graduate nurse, in addition to being a young woman of most pleasing personality. The groom is a son of Mr. and Mrs. T. Williams of Poughkeepsie, a graduate of Eastman's College and employed by the Central New England at Maybrook. The happy couple are spending their honey moon at Niagara Falls.

Soikanishade Club.

On Monday afternoon Miss Mary Dugan was hostess for the Soikanishade Club. Much amusement was afforded by the humorous anecdotes given in response to roll call. Mrs Vincent A De Castro's paper on Ralph Waldo Emerson showed much careful study and was listened to very attentively. Those present were brought to a full realization of Emerson's thought, its acuteness and depth, the power of his prose, the strange charm of his verse and the rare beauty of his language—all a perpetual surprise. Once a clergyman he left the ministry through lack of sympathy with his church, but it has been truly said, "he took his pulpit with him and preached all his life, even his poetry was preaching." As a lecturer he was very successful, and his lectures on science, history and biography were very popular on account of their exhaustless fund of wit, illustration and anecdote. As in his religious profession Emerson had the courage of his convictions in his literary work and often defied all prescribed canons. He will always be the favorite author of somebody and to be always read by somebody is better than to be first read by everybody and then by nobody. The efficient and entertaining manner in which the subject was treated caused members of the club to resolve to gain a more thorough knowledge of this gifted poet and essayist. In the short paper Mrs. Lasher aroused the interest of all by her description of the resources, climate, scenery and accessibility of picturesque Alaska. At the close of the regular meeting Mrs. J. W. Leary, Miss Dugan's house guest, delighted the assembly by singing "Goodby Summer," and graciously responded to a hearty encore with one of Moore's famous melodies. The club will meet next Monday with Mrs. Hull at 204 Main street. The program will be "Current Events." The principal paper will be on "William Cullen Bryant.' by Mrs. G. L. Rice. There will be a short paper on the "San Francisco Exposition" by Mrs. V. D. Hull.

ORIENTAL LACQUER.

Japan Got the Art From China, Then Surpassed Her Tutor.

Lacquer has furnished a most varied material for one of the earliest industrial arts of China, and, though there are no authentic records of its origin nor of the steps of its early development, the process is already called an ancient one in a work published in 1387, in the first year of the Ming period, which proves that the art was known in as remote an epoch as the Sung dynasty. The culminating years of its development were reached in the reign of the Emperor Chien Lung (1736-95), who greatly encouraged its manufacture and had large quantities of lacquered objects made with which to furnish and decorate his palace. After his death the art seems to have declined in merit, and since that time little or nothing of any high artistic value in Chinese lacquer has been accomplished.

The Japanese first learned the process from China, but have since brought it to a point of perfection which surpasses the finest productions of the Chinese. In Japan, however, lacquer is applied solely to objects of comparatively small size, while in the Chinese empire it served to decorate screens and panels of tremendous dimensions.

Lacquer is divided into two classes—painted and carved lacquer. Both kinds are sometimes inlaid with mother-of-pearl, ivory, jade and various semi-precious stones

It was in the early seventeenth century, when Holland and Portugal began their trade with the remote east, and particularly with China, that marvelous empire teeming with so many extraordinary artistic manifestations, that Europe first began to realize the new and vast field of decorative elements which were contained in and revealed to her artists by oriental art.—Henry Coleman May in Scribner's.

THE CURIOUS BANANA TREE.

A Plant That Will Practically Grow While You Wait.

If a good sized, healthy banana tree is cut off a few feet above the ground during the wet season the tree will not die, but nine times out of ten will send up a new shoot from the center of the trunk and will grow fast enough to make up for lost time, for within forty-eight hours it will rear waving green leaves triumphantly above the severed trunk.

The secret lies in the fact that the trunk of the banana tree is not hard and woody like other trees, but is really composed of undeveloped leaves wrapped tightly together in a spiral form. When the tree grows these rolled up leaves push upward and merely unroll Thus no time is lost in forming buds and growing leaves as do ordinary trees When the trunk is cut off it doesn't interfere with the growth of the leaves, because they are always pushing up from the center of the stalk. If you will roll a sheet of paper tightly and push against one end you will see exactly how the leaves are pushed up from the trunk of the banana tree, and if you cut the roll in two you will find that it doesn't prevent you from pushing out the center of the roll as before.

Although the banana tree repairs an injury so rapidly and well, the shoot formed from the cut stalk seldom bears fruit or flowers As these shoots are taller and stronger than the original trees, however, they are much better adapted to withstand wind and storms, and the natives frequently cut the banana trees in order to force them to produce the strong, fruitless growth and to serve as windbreaks for other crops.—A. Hyatt Verrill in St. Nicholas.

LONG RANGE FRENCH GUNS POUNDING GERMANS IN CHAMPAGNE.

Here is one of the French 120 millimetre long range pieces which has been pounding the German positions in the Champagne district for almost a month. Since the recent French advance these guns have been throwing their shells into the German position in the hope of locating a weak spot through which further advance can be made.

ELLENVILLE WOMAN IN JAIL FOR BIGAMY

Mrs Minnie Mae Brighton, 26 years old, of Ellenville was brought to the county jail on Thursday evening to await the action of the grand jury on a charge of bigamy. She was committed to the county jail by Justice Brundage of Ellenville, and was accompanied to prison by her four year old son, a bright little chap, who is a voluntary prisoner in the jail until disposition is made of his mother's case.

Mrs. Brighton when seen this noon explained how she came to be arrested. She said she married Edward Brighton, while living in a village near Middletown and that he is the father of her boy. Her husband she said used to get drunk and abused her so that she finally determined to leave him. She did and came to Ellenville where she secured work and met William Delance.

She said that Delance wanted to marry her and she told him she was married. Some time later she said she got a letter from a girl friend stating that Edward was dead. She thereupon decided to marry William and did so. She lived with Delance for some time until she finally got another letter from the same girl friend who wrote to tell her that Edward was not dead but living.

Mrs. Brighton said she explained matters to William and finally they separated and she returned to her first husband to see if she could not get him "to sign divorce papers."

When asked as to how she came to be arrested she said that it was through the complaint of William, her second husband.

Mrs Brighton who is young is tall and rather slenderly built and has light hair and complexion. Her boy is a sturdy little chap and bright and active.

In explaining her matrimonial difficulties she said that since she had lived with William, she had not been a charge on the town and though they did not have much still they managed to get along, but when she was with Edward, she was forced at times to become a charge on the town in which they lived.

Her maiden name was Groat, and she has a mother living in Ellenville.

A Sundown Cut-up.

The Rev. W. S. Empleton was giving a illustrated lecture in the Sundown M. E. Church recently when some one stole his horsewhip and took the burrs off of both front axles of his wagon. He had gone but a dozen yards when both front wheels came off and the frightened horse jumped and dragged the domine, wagon and all for some fifty yards. Fortunately not much damage was done. One of the thills was broken and some other small breaks.—Ellenville Press.

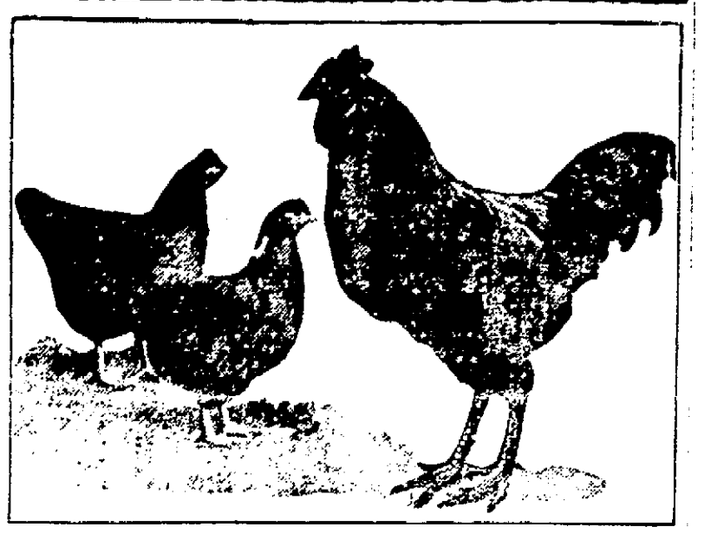
SATISFACTION WITH RHODE ISLAND REDS



Excellent Rhode Island Trio.

(By P. S. PRASH.)

Anyone having a desire to engage in the poultry business either for pleasure or profit may select from the now large number of breeds and varieties the one or the ones that take his fancy, or if engaging in the utility sides may choose for market poultry some of the larger breeds, which mean weight, while for eggs one usually looks to some of the smaller varieties, but my experience has taught me to go between both, which is the medium-size variety. In this I get good results both for eggs and marketing.

As a rule poultrymen of experience look to one of the American breeds for a fowl that will give a good supply of eggs the year around, and when ready to be marketed will be in demand as table poultry.

All things considered, the Rhode Island Red comes the nearest to the all-purpose fowl for the farmer or poultryman. It is purely an American bird.

They have to some extent the active qualities of the Leghorn, are still large enough to make them valuable as table poultry, surpassing in quality some of the heavier breeds in the much-wanted taste of wild game.

I have had many people complain, say they did not like the Rhode Island Red because of their broodiness. The Rhode Island Red does cause some inconvenience along that line, but I have taken hens from these breeding pens when in broody condition, and placed them two and three in a smaller coop hung on the side of the breeding pens, and in three or four days they are willing to go to work again at their old job of laying, and I can show records these same hens laid more eggs through the winter than most of my pullets. Again, by taking a rest when eggs are cheap in spring, they are ready for business when prices were high. Had they laid heavily in late spring, as some breeds do, without being broody, I might not have got the eggs in winter. The Rhode Island Reds will grow and mature four to five weeks earlier than the other American breeds, making them of more value to the utility man both in getting quicker returns and by being such foragers you are not compelled to get the chicks out in very cold weather, and as I have bred many different varieties both of the heavy marketing fowls and of the lighter weight type for laying, I have found that none can give as much satisfaction as the good Rhode Island Reds.

GOOD EGG MARKETING HINTS

Have Plenty of Nests and Keep Them Clean—Remove Roosters When Breeding Season Is Over.

(By T. E. QUISENBERRY, Missouri Experiment Station.)

Keep the hens' nests clean and have plenty of nests.

Gather eggs twice daily in warm weather and daily during other seasons.

Handle eggs as little as possible, as handling deteriorates them.

Market eggs of the correct size, 24 to 28 ounces a dozen.

Cull out all very large or very small eggs.

Use nothing but clean eggs; never wash them for market.

Produce only infertile eggs by removing all roosters as soon as the breeding period is over.

Keep all eggs in a cool, dry place.

Don't let eggs come into contact with vegetable or kitchen odors.

Don't hold eggs too long, as they deteriorate rapidly; market at least twice a week.

Keep only one breed of chickens and raise eggs of one color.

Market your eggs in clean, 30-dozen cases, or in cartons holding one dozen eggs, depending on the demand.

Don't expose eggs to flies and dust.

Confine broody hens at once and remove them to the hatching department.

Never expose market eggs to the direct rays of the sun, to extreme heat or rain.

Keep poultry houses free from vermin.

Feed wholesome, clean feed and provide pure water in clean vessels and often.

Sell your eggs only to buyers, who buy loss-off and who are willing to pay for quality.

GIVE POULTRY CLEAN YARDS

Divide Quarters Into Sections So That One May Be Renovated While Other Is in Use.

Where fowls are confined in rather close quarters during the summer it is a good plan to arrange so that the poultry yard can be cleaned or else divided in two or more sections, so that one can be renovated while the other is being used.

If the yard is of the ordinary garden soil it should be spaded under to the depth of the spade after first cleaning out the worst of the filth. Then sow this space to oats or rye and allow it to grow for two weeks; then turn the poultry into this yard and treat the other yard in the same manner.

Brahmas Make Good Capons.

White Brahma capons present a very attractive appearance and they weigh a little more at selling time than the Plymouth Rocks, but it takes less feed for the Rocks because the Rocks are better foragers than the Brahmas.

First Meal for Chicks.

When boiled and chopped up fine the infertile eggs from the incubator make great feed for the first meal of the newly-hatched chicks.

PLAN FOR PRESERVING EGGS

One Gallon of Water Glass Will Make Enough Solution to Preserve Fifty Dozen Eggs.

Use pure water that has been thoroughly boiled and then cooled. To each ten quarts of water add one quart of water glass. Pack the eggs in a jar and pour solution over them, covering well.

Keep the eggs in a cool dark place. A dry, cool cellar is a good place.

If the eggs are kept in too warm a place the silicate is deposited and the eggs are not properly protected. Do not wash the eggs before packing, for by so doing you injure their keeping quality, probably dissolving the mucilaginous coating on the outside of the shell.

For packing, use only perfectly fresh eggs, for stale eggs will not be saved and may prove harmful to the others.

Water glass is a very cheap product, that can usually be procured at not to exceed 50 cents per gallon, and one gallon would make enough solution to preserve 50 dozen eggs, so that the cost of material for this method would be only about one cent per dozen. Water glass is sodium and potassium silicate, sodium silicate being usually the cheaper. If wooden kegs or barrels are used in which to pack the eggs, they should first be thoroughly scalded with boiling water, to sweeten and purify them.—Taken from Farmers' Bulletin No. 103, United States Department of Agriculture.

AVOID SOFT-SHELLED EGGS

Most Frequent Cause Is Lack of Oyster Shells and Mineral Matter—Feed More Grains.

Soft-shelled eggs in turkeys or common hens are caused most frequently by the lack of oyster shell and mineral matter in the ration, and by overfeeding, thus causing the stock to be overfat. Overfat stock are quite apt to produce soft-shelled eggs.

One other cause, but not very common, is an irritation in the egg passage or oviduct, causing this abnormality. To remedy this, the feeding of less fattening foods, such as corn and milo, kafir, but more wheat, oats and similar grains and crushed or ground oyster shell is recommended. This will in most cases prove a remedy.

Lot of Unnecessary Work.

It is certainly less trouble not to mix wet mashes or cook feed for small chicks, and they will do as well on dry, uncooked feed. Cooked or wet feed leaves dirtier eating vessels or feeding places, more sour stuff lying around to start digestive troubles; so, why take the trouble to do a lot of unnecessary work?

Disinfectant for Cholera.

As a disinfectant in the water for adult fowls afflicted with cholera or any of the germ diseases resembling cholera, put ten grains of sulphocarbolate of zinc in each quart of drinking water.

Makes Good Eggs.

Buttermilk makes good eggs and lots of them.

Snubbed.

"Yes; we pay strict cash for everything."

"Ah, I often speak to my husband about the time when we had ter"—Puck.

A Long Sidewalk.

The annual product of bricks in the United States is 25,000,000,000. This is enough to lay a five foot sidewalk eight times around the world.

RUINS OF TAHURE.

RUINS OF TAHURE; SCENE OF PRESENT GERMAN OFFENSIVE.

The village of Tahure, France, and the territory immediately adjacent is the scene of the latest attack by the Germans. They succeeded in capturing the Butte of Tahure, but the village, or what remains of it, shown in the photograph remains in the hands of the Allies. The loss of the Butte was a severe shock to the French, as their batteries from this hill menaced the Callerango-Bazincourt railway, the main supply line for all the German troops in the Soissons salient.

Nureddin Ali's Burial

By F. A. MITCHEL

A revolution in Turkey had been unsuccessful, and a large number of persons implicated in it were to be executed. The common method of killing political prisoners was lopping off their heads, but in this case the sultan was so enraged with the revolutionists that he determined to hang them. In order to get through with the matter and have it off his mind, the commander of the faithful ordered that they all be disposed of at once in a public place in order to impress the people with the fact that they had better not try any more revolutions.

Nureddin Ali, a young man of great promise, had been mixed up in the affair and was one of those who were to be hanged. He had only one wife to mourn his loss—an advantage of monogamy—but he had recently married her, and they loved each other very dearly. The morning upon which his execution was to take place she went to the prison to bid him goodby. There was a heartrending scene, at the end of which Nureddin said:

"Fatima, as soon as my body is turned over to you, bury it and cease to grieve for me. Turn rather to a renewed interest in life. You are young and will doubtless marry again, though you may not, as in your first marriage, procure a whole man to yourself. Prepare a lot in the cemetery at once and have a grave dug, that all may be ready."

This caused a fresh outburst of tears, amid which the young widow to be left the prison. But after doing so she acted upon her husband's wishes, going straight to the cemetery to make preparations for the interment. She had scarcely gone when several hundred prisoners were mustered in the court of the prison and marched to the public gardens for execution. An immense crowd had gathered to witness it, and the soldiers conducting the prisoners were obliged to use force to make a way for them. Once at the place of execution, they were drawn up in four ranks, some sixty men in each rank, before the gallows, when the work was commenced.

Those in the front rank were first dispatched, but as from five to ten minutes were required to hang each man a great deal of time was consumed. For that reason the killing began early in the morning. When the front rank had been finished Nureddin, who was in the second rank, in order to prolong his life so far as possible, managed to drop back into the third.

As the work went on the people kept pressing against the soldiers, who stood behind the rear rank of prisoners, and the latter grew tired of keeping them back. The consequence was that the rear part of the group of prisoners after awhile became disarranged.

Nureddin, while the second rank was being strung up, managed to slip back into the fourth rank. Noticing that behind it was a mingling of guards and citizens, it occurred to him that if he could get mixed up with the latter he might possibly slide out and escape. He wormed himself back and was about to take position when a guard saw him and ordered him to get back into line. He did so, but kept his eye open for another opportunity.

More than a hundred men had dangled, and a great deal of time had been consumed. Every one was tired except those in the crowd, which was constantly changing. The guards, who were keeping back the spectators, were the most tired of all. Nureddin, taking advantage of this fact, tried again to get back among the citizens and this time succeeded. Without waiting he turned his face to the rear, pushed aside a fat woman and an eager boy and in a twinkling was lost among the sea of beings about the gallows.

Meanwhile Fatima had gone to the cemetery to make arrangements for her husband's interment. She had bought a small lot and had ordered a coffin, which was delivered at the cemetery, for the authorities had informed her that her husband's body would be turned over to her there.

Fatima was standing beside the grave watching men open it. They had sunk it midway. The coffin was resting beside it. Suddenly the poor woman was astonished to see her husband coming toward her. Supposing the apparition was the ghost of Nureddin, who had been executed, and was coming to be laid away, she fell in a faint. The gravediggers, muttering "Allah, defend us!" leaped from the grave and were about to run away when Nureddin called to them in the name of the prophet to bury him or they would be eternally damned. Fatima came back to consciousness, and Nureddin, taking her in his arms, told her hurriedly how he had escaped and begged her to see that he was buried with a breathing place left above him in order that he might escape detection.

Taking up the coffin, he placed it in the half opened grave and got into it, and Fatima, who by this time had recovered something of her equanimity, put the cover on it loosely. Then she directed the gravediggers to throw on some earth while she gathered loose brush. This she put on the earth and covered it with dry grass, scattering loose soil on the top. Nureddin could easily remove all this if he was in danger of smothering.

Fatima remained by the grave till it was dark and the cemetery was deserted; then she called to her husband to kick off what covered him. He did so, and the two left the cemetery together and, taking ship, passed through the Dardanelles to Greece.

HUGH BLACKLOCK.

MICHIGAN AGGIES' STAR TACKLE

Few people heard of the Michigan Agricultural College until eleven of its most promising lads succeeded in piling up a 24 to 0 score on the football squad at the University of Michigan. The Michigan Aggies as a football team are not to be sneezed at. In Hugh Blacklock they have one of the star tackles of the season. He is playing his third year of varsity football, and although but 20 years of age, weighs 190 pounds and is 6 feet 1 inch in height. He was the all-around track champion of the Michigan High School the year he was graduated from Grand Rapids High. He is very clever with his hands, holds the ball well and carries it from the fullback position, to which he is sometimes shifted, with the best of them. He hits the line hard and fast and made big gains against the University of Michigan team. Despite his name, Blacklock is not an Indian.

OUR MISNAMED RUINS.

The Mesa Verde Cliff Dwellings Are Really Complete Towns.

Many visitors to the prehistoric cliff dwellings of the Mesa Verde National park, in southwestern Colorado, says a government publication, are astonished to find that what is commonly described as a dwelling is not properly a dwelling at all, but a village or city.

The celebrated Cliff Palace is not a palace. Neither is Spruce Tree House a house, nor Balcony House a house. Each of these is a complete town which once, in the dim ages before the earliest Indian tradition, was an organized community, often of considerable size.

The arrangement of houses in a cliff dwelling of the size of Cliff Palace, for example, is characteristic and intimately associated with the distribution of the social divisions of the inhabitants. The population was composed of a number of units, possibly clans, each of which had its own social organization more or less distinct from others, a condition that appears in the arrangement of rooms. The rooms occupied by a clan were not necessarily connected, although generally neighboring rooms were distinguished from one another by their uses.

In a Maori Wooing House.

Among the Maoris sometimes in the whare matoro (the wooing house), a building in which the young of both sexes assembled for play, songs, dances, etc., there would be at stated times a meeting. When the fires burned low a girl would stand up in the dark and say: "I love So-and-so. I want him for my husband." If he couched (sign of assent) or said "Yes" it was well; if only dead silence she covered her head with her robe and was ashamed. This was not often, as she generally had managed to ascertain, either by her own inquiry or by sending a girl friend, if the proposal was acceptable. On the other hand, sometimes a mother would attend and say, "I want So-and-so for my son." If not acceptable there was generally mocking, and she was told to let the young people have their house (the wooing house) to themselves.

Refraction of Light.

Refraction plays many magical tricks with men's eyes. It is responsible for the extraordinary phenomenon called mirage, which has excited the wonder of mankind in every age. Owing to differences of temperature, barometric pressure, etc., in adjacent parts of the atmosphere, the refraction is sometimes capriciously varied so that the most abnormal sights are seen. Parts of the earth seem detached and set afloat. Ships are visible, upside down, in the sky; objects lying behind hills are beheld apparently lifted above them; lakes of gleaming water, surrounded by palm trees and refreshing vegetation, spring into view in the midst of sandy deserts; unknown cities, with towers and pinnacles, make their appearance suspended in the air; aerial animals appear, browsing in illusory pastures; processions of men and horses are seen, marching or galloping where no foot has ever trod—such are some of the recorded marvels that the mirage has produced.—New York Journal.

In Old Porto Rico.

In the vicinity of Mayaguez, Porto Rico, are several historically interesting places. The little village of Rio Guanroba, near Anasco, was the scene of the unique experiment by which the Indians in 1511 endeavored to discover whether the Spaniards were immortal.

After holding a Spanish nobleman under water six hours they were assured that those intruders were just as subject to death as themselves.

About seven miles from Mayaguez, across a rough mountainous country, is the famous sanctuary of Montserrat, which is visited every year by many pilgrims.

Situated conspicuously among its wild surroundings, its large stone church is visible for many miles. From the mountain top we obtained a delightful view of the beautiful plain through which flow the Boqueron and Guanajoba rivers.—New York Telegram.

SISTER'S SUIT AGAINST BROTHER

A law suit between a sister and a brother was brought to light this morning in supreme court when the trial of the action of Mary Ella McDonnell, wife of Thomas McDonnell of Port Ewen, against her brother, Edward F. Malia, formerly proprietor of the Riverview Hotel, corner Strand and Hasbrouck avenue, was taken up before Judge Hasbrouck and a jury and continued this afternoon. The action is brought to recover moneys claimed to be due for the board and care of the brother's daughter, Florence. Joseph M. Fowler represented Mrs. McDonnell while Brinnier & Canfield represented Mr. Malia. All jurors not on the panel were excused until Monday morning at 10 o'clock.

From the story as brought out on the witness stand Mr. Malia suffered the loss of his wife by death leaving him with the care of a daughter, Florence, aged three years. After the burial of Mrs. Malia the father and his daughter went over to Port Ewen and boarded with his sister, Mrs. McDonnell, and her family for a period of two years. During that time he paid his sister from $25 to $30 a month for the board of himself and Florence. For that period no claim is made.

Some time in August, 1908, Mr. Malia went away from his sister's home, leaving his daughter there where she remained until January of 1914 and it is for that period of time that the sister is bringing the suit to recover for board and lodging of the child. Mrs. McDonnell contends that the fair price for board of Florence is $5 a week and this amount she has not been paid by her brother.

It was also brought out that Mr. Malia married again on Christmas Day in 1913.

Mr. Malia's defence to the action is that the girl's board was paid and he explained how it was paid. According to his story when he bought the hotel for $3,900 in 1908, his sister and her husband and he had a conversation over in the McDonnell house in Port Ewen in which Malia claims that his sister asked him to take her husband into partnership with him.

Later when the hotel was opened for business the two men went into partnership in running the saloon, the firm name being Malia & McDonnell. Mr. Malia said that the rent of the saloon was $40 a month and that it was agreed that McDonnell instead of paying his half of the rent should retain the $20 in compensation for boarding Florence. This partnership between the two men existed from September 6, 1908, to September 4, 1914, when it was dissolved.

The McDonnells deny that any arrangement was made whereby they would accept the $20 a month board for Florence and that the husband would not have to pay his half of the rent for the saloon.

It was brought out that the partnership did not exist on the whole hotel business but only to the saloon end of the business and that any profit made from renting out rooms was taken by Mr. Malia and was considered as a separate investment. When the saloon was opened for business McDonell put in $145 and Malia put $100 in the business.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Nov. 5.—There was an active demand for stocks at the opening this morning and all through the first fifteen minutes with many issues making substantial gains but realizing continued on a large scale, many selling orders being reached by advances. The copper stocks attracted most attention. Anaconda scored a further gain of ½ to 36½ and Utah rose ⅜ to 74⅛. American Sugar was in persistent demand, rising ½ to 119⅝. A gain of 1⅝ was made in United States Rubber to 58⅝. Western Union opened a point higher at 88⅝ and General Electric made initial upturn of 1⅛ to 180⅛. Bethlehem Steel was traded in at 440, unchanged. Crucible Steel opened a point lower at 75. Atchison sold ex-dividend of 1½ at 109⅞, a net gain of ⅜.

Liquidation on a large scale was noted in the late forenoon. Anaconda, Steel Common, Union Pacific and Reading were in free supply, selling at declines ranging from fractions to around a point. Canadian Pacific sold at 135¾, a decline of 2⅞ points. Allis Chalmers was weak, that stock selling down to 37, a decline of three points for the morning. Baldwin Locomotive yielded 2½ to 128½, and a decline of ½ was noted in American Can, Studebaker and Republic Iron and Steel. American Smelting, however, was in good demand, selling at 94⅛, an advance of nearly 2 points. The petroleum issues were also in good demand. Mexican Petroleum advancing to 90½, a net gain of 1¾ points. An advance of two points to 21¾ was made in California Petroleum, followed by a decline to 21. Money loaning at 1¾ per cent.

Stocks were in free supply in the late afternoon, and nearly everything on the list shared in the downward movement. American Smelting, after selling at 95, dropped to 93⅞. Steel common fell from 87¾ to 86⅜. American Can dropped to 58½ and Allis-Chalmers sold at 36⅞ against 40 at the close yesterday.

The market closed steady. Recessions were generally in order in the last hour, nearly all standard issues showing losses of around a point. New Haven dropped 1¾ to 80½. The low priced industrials showed a lack of demand. Allis-Chalmers fell over 3 points for the day. Canadian Pacific sold at 135, a loss in all of 3 points. There were trifling rallies at the end. Government bonds unchanged; others strong.

Gives Up Its Charter.

Eureka Lodge, No. 131, Knights of Pythias, of Coxsackie, has decided to give up its charter.

CULTIVATE JUDGMENT.

Its Possession Is What Makes a Man Successful in Business.

It was one of the intellectual shocks of my young manhood to discover that an analytical chemist could often get only $50 a month. I had long looked with awe upon the accurate percentages and detailed reports of the analytical chemist. This water contains 2.341 grains of such and such substance per gallon. I wondered at the marvelous man who could get out such fine results, and to learn that he at times gets but $50 a month was a shock.

The explanation is this. The chemical analysis of ordinary specimens is a technical process of a perfectly definite character. If a work is definite and therefore capable of being reduced to clear cut instructions the pay that it commands is not likely to be high, even though the work itself is complicated. It requires good memory and painstaking obedience to instructions. Many persons have these qualities. The scarce attribute is judgment, that indefinable quality capable of meeting a new situation and handling it with common sense or gumption, to put it in a homely term.

Judgment is indefinite. We cannot lay out instructions in advance to tell the manager how to meet situations. To buy good raw material he must learn to know the raw materials, and many of the tests he applies are too fine for words to reduce to instructions. He must decide for indefinite reasons that now is a good time to enlarge or retrench; that here is a good place to open up business; that now is a good time to buy or to run low on stock; that this man needs to be hired; that this man needs to be fired.

It is in the making of decisions that successful management lies. And most of these decisions are beyond rule. They are indefinite. They are judgment.—Engineering Magazine.

MENKE'S DAILY SPORTING LETTER

(By Frank G. Menke.)

New York, Nov. 5—"It's my red hair that got me into the fighting game," asserted Frank Moran, the Irish huskie who yearns to try conclusions with Jess Willard.

"You see it was this way," Moran explained. "When I grew up to the tender age of 10 years my hair was a flaming red. That gave the kids a chance to yell 'Pod-head, ginger bread' at me, all of which peeved me considerably. There was only one way to stop that track of the other boys and that was to whale 'em into silence.

"Well, it took me about two years to finish the job but I did it. There were a lot of boys in my neighborhood and I had to beat them up in rotation. Some of them were bigger than I was and I had to tackle those fellows three or four times before I could blacken their eyes or bloody their noses. In my kid days, a fight wasn't settled with a knockout, it was settled with a black eye or a bloody nose. The kid who scored the first black eye or landed the first gore producing wallop on the beezer of the other kid was the winner.

"Practice makes perfect, and, as I said, constant battling to save my red hair from insult won me all my kid fights in time.

Fought For 5 Cent Purse.

"My first prize fight was for a 5 cent purse. It was staged in a caboose. On my way to school I had to cross a railroad track in one of the Pittsburgh suburbs. A caboose always lay at that point and was used as a loafing room for the trainmen between runs.

"One day a trainman hailed me. He said he'd heard I was quite a scrapper but he said he knew a kid who could beat me up. I told the trainman that I didn't care what the kid thought that I only fought fellows who called me 'red-head.'

"'Oh, then you've gotta fight this fellow,' said the trainman, 'because he keeps on saying that you're just a 'red-headed ginger bread' false alarm.'

"Well, right there I said I'd fight. The trainman said he'd have the other kid in the caboose the next day after school and that I should be around.

"'The winner of the fight,' said the trainman, 'will get a nickel.'

"I won the fight. I smashed the other kid right on the bridge of the nose with the second punch and not only did his eyes get black but his nose started to bleed, too.

Trainman Fleeced Him of "Roll."

"After that I used to scrap any kids that came to the caboose. Pretty soon I had 18 nickels that I'd won. I was saving them all until I got a dollar and then I was going to put it in the bank. But I never got that dollar together because I was 'trimmed' by a substitute trainman.

"One day the sub called me and told me about a kid who wanted to fight me for a side bet of $1. I told the trainman I had only 80 cents. The sub said: 'That's all right, and you give me the 80 cents and I'll put 20 more to it to make the dollar. I'll act as your stakeholder.'

"The scrap was pulled off the next day. I beat that kid up considerably and after we'd been slugging away for 5 minutes he yelled he had enough, jumped from the caboose and ran away.

"I then looked among the trainmen for the stakeholder, but I couldn't see him. 'Where's Jim?'—(the stakeholder) I asked. One of the trainmen said he'd been transferred to another run that morning. I never saw Jim again—and I never got the $2.

"Since I've been in the fighting game I've been fleeced pretty often and for thousands of dollars at a crack, but no loss ever hurt me like that first one did.

"Some folks have the idea that I got a big bunch of money for my fight against Jack Johnson. I ought to have gotten a nice roll, but the truth is I didn't get a cent. In several other of my big fights I didn't get a penny. I've been shorn closer than any lamb, but from now on Frankie Moran won't let any managers get about 100 per cent of his money."
